Dear Amazon.com Associate,

It's time for referral fee payments to our Associates again!  June 30, 2000 marked the end of the 2nd quarter of 2000 (Q2-00), and we've just sent you a payment for the referral fees you've earned during the past quarter.  This payment also includes any balance credit carried forward from previous quarters.

The following explains how we derived the amount of your referral fee payment and lists the qualifying items credited to your account that were paid for and shipped for Q2-00 (April 1 - June 30, 2000).

                    -------------------
                      PLEASE READ THESE IMPORTANT NOTES:
                    -------------------

1. This payment also includes any balance credit carried forward from previous quarters.

2. Out-of-print items, gift certificates, and items sold through our Auctions and zShops are not covered by the Associates Program.

3. When comparing your payment to the online reports found on Associates Central, please refer to the "Earnings Reports" since they list the items actually paid for and shipped to customers during the quarter.  Remember that fees are paid at the end of the quarter in which the shipment is paid for and shipped to the customer, not the quarter in which the order is placed.

4.  If you earned less than $25 in referral fees through the prior quarter (which ended 3 months ago), you would not have received a payment at that time.  In that case, you will see the unpaid amount included in the report below and added into this quarter's payment.

5.  Each item in the report is only listed once with the total amount we've collected from customers for shipments of that title.  In other words, there is only one line per title regardless of the number of copies shipped during the quarter.
